All-Star Bill at Orpheum Starting Sun.

An all-star bill of super-features will be the dazzling offering at the Orpheum, Los Angeles, starting Sunday matinee July 1. Every act on the bill is an outstanding attraction which makes for a show of unusual merit and appeal. Leading the aggregation of stellar lights will be Eugene O'Brien, the star of stage and screen, in a thrilling new playlet entitled "Resurrection." Others on the bill will be the Three Brox Sisters, dainty and pretty stars of the "Follies" and Irving Berlin's "Music Box Revue;" Al Shaw and Sam Lee, late starring comedians with "The Five o'Clock Girl;" Dora Maughan, the brilliant young songstress fresh from triumph in London, and Bert Wheeler, the comedy highlight from Ziegfeld's success "Rio Rita." Others on the bill will be the famous California Collegians, Tex McLeod and the Collegiates.

Wade-Renfroe Plays Open in Hawthorne

Popular Hermosa Players
Move to New Site at Hawthorne

Announcement is made this week by the Wade-Renfroe Players, formerly of Hermosa Beach that they will open next Sunday at the old Murphy's Comedians site in Hawthorne, just north of the intersection of Ballona street and Hawthorne, just north of the intersection. This company has for the past few months been located on Pier avenue in Hermosa, where many Torrance and Lomita patrons have enjoyed their entertainment. In announcing the opening in their new location the management states that they will continue to present only the highest class royalty plays obtainable, the one for opening week being "The Patsy," a play with an enviable record of long and successful runs in eastern cities.

What Would You Do?
If you were a maid in love with a man and didn't think you had a chance would you resign yourself to Fate, or would you fight tooth and nail to win no matter against what odds?

This is Irene Renfroe's position as Patricia in "The Patsy," Barry Connors' latest American comedy which the Wade-Renfroe Players will present next week at their "Tent Beautiful" in Hawthorne.

Not only does the quaint and adorable Patricia get blamed for everything, no matter whose the fault, in her family, but she is madly in love with Tony, her sister's cast off suitor. Since Tony's heart still yearns for Grace, dear little Pat doesn't seem to have a chance. But does she give up? Never! She becomes the most earnest student of love you could possibly conceive, and before she is through she learns seven great fundamental truths which she claims should be brought to the attention of every girl who wants to win the man she loves. Here they are: 1st—The lessons in love Miss Renfroe uses so successfully in "The Patsy." Make them your own—and win!

1st—The first thing is to be sure you love him.

2nd—Don't wait for him to come to you; you go after him.

3rd—Make the man interested in you by letting him feel your interest in him.

4th—Find out what his little pet dream is and let him realize your understanding and appreciation of it.

5th—Be his cheer leader. The average man cannot get along without an audience.

6th—If he's heart-broken, catch him on the rebound. That's the psychological moment.

7th—After you get him interested, let him find out there's someone else who wants you.

Try these seven rules for yourself. They work.

But first, go see just how it's done. Miss Renfroe has it down to perfection in her part in this play. Showing all next week at "The Tent Beautiful."

"Wings" Coming to Cabrillo Theatre on July 4th and 5th

Jobyna Balston
in "Wings"
Paramounts Aviation Spectacle

Already lauded in the highest terms by German, French, British, Japanese and Belgian spokesmen, "Wings" the war aviation film coming to the Cabrillo Theatre, San Pedro, on July 5-6, is now the recipient of praise for its international appeal from United America, an influential organ of Italian opinion in this country.

Discussing the flying spectacle, Myron Perez writes as follows in the current issue of United America:

"Wings" is destined to make as much of a hit beyond the ocean as it has here, for one of its outstanding characteristics is its evident attempt to give all nations a square deal, thereby counteracting the bad impression made abroad by "The Big Parade" and "What Price Glory," pictures which have been described as supernationalistic and bursting with the insensate pride of a nation that thought it won the war all by itself. In "Wings" on the other hand, the French and British armies on the western front are given their full share of the credit, and while the interest centers, as is natural about the A. E. F., the spectator is at no time being made to feel that the Americans were fighting alone.

"This desire to be fair is in evidence throughout, and even leads the director to insert Russian and Italian officers into secondary scenes. Even the enemy is handsomely dealt by. Baron Von Richthofen, thinly disguised under the title of Count Von Kellerman, is depicted as a chivalrous, courageous foe who does not hesitate to let his Allied opponents escape when he observes that their machine guns are jammed and who takes terrific chances to inform them of the death of one of their comrades."

"What a Man" Is New Laugh Show at Hollywood

A new and important step in the successful history of the Hollywood Play House was accomplished last evening, when Seymour Hick's crowded sequence of laugh-provoking situations, "What a Man," made its West Coast premiere.

In this farce comedy, first discovered by the actor A. H. Woods, and produced by him in New York, and later in London with a run of two years, the Play House has spared neither effort nor expense to provide its large following with the ultimate in an evening's entertainment.

George Sherwood, the director, takes great pleasure in announcing that he has secured that nationally known star and master of comedy, John T. Murray, for the leading role. Supporting the featured player, is an excellent company headed by such noted players as Ruth King, Edgar Norton, Charles Hill, Madeline, Mabel Forrest, Brady Kilne, Margaret Landis and others of note.

As the best mirth-maker in the world, "What a Man" has one positive and conclusive proof: it played to crowded houses for two years in London. Anything that can make the English laugh that long must be funny, and it is.

Hollywood Bowl Open Air Concerts to Start July 10

Hollywood Bowl, Southern California's unique music amphitheater, which attracts annually thousands of music lovers from all over the world, will open for the seventh season of "Symphonies Under the Stars" on July 10. The "special nights" policy, which proved so popular last year, will be continued this summer with Tuesday as "Symphony Night," Thursday, "Novelty Night," Friday, "Solo Night" and Saturday "Popular Night."
